REPLY TO ATTENTION OF:

Congratulations on your assignment to the 63rd Signal Battalion, the Army's premier expeditionary signal battalion. On behalf of the Battalion Commander, LTC Michael Martel, I would like to welcome you to Fort Gordon and 35th Signal Brigade (Lion Brigade). You will be pleased to know that you are coming to the most modern and finest signal battalion in the Army.

The 63rd Expeditionary Signal Battalion is a part of the 35th Signal Brigade. The Brigade is also comprised of the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 50th Expeditionary Signal Battalion, 51st Expeditionary Signal Battalion and the 67th Expeditionary Signal Battalion. The 35th Signal Brigade remains combat ready twenty four hours a day and has proved itself in both combat and humanitarian missions.

The 63rd Signal Battalion consists of five companies. Headquarters Company consists of highly motivated Soldiers who provide life support, maintenance and planning to all of the companies. Alpha and Bravo Companies are the light companies, consisting of three highly motivated platoons of Signalers featuring JNN, CPN, and Satellite. Charlie Company is the heavy company. The 518th Tactical Installation Network Company is a valuable member to our team. Each unit has rich history of accomplishments; most recently, they all played a big part in Operation Iraqi and Enduring Freedom. Regardless of your company assignment, I am sure you will be a welcomed addition and quickly adopt the pride we share of serving in Team 63rd.

The 63rd Expeditionary Signal Battalion is located in Fort Gordon, near friendly Augusta, Georgia. Augusta is the second largest city in Georgia and is known for hosting the Masters Golf tournament every spring. It is located 150 miles from Atlanta, Georgia, which has a wealth of cultural, sporting, and theatrical events.
