

Army Doctrine Update

Army Doctrine 2015 is a TRADOC initiative to create a hierarchy for Army doctrine that separates fundamental principles into Army Doctrine Publications and Army Doctrine Reference Publications, tactics and procedures into Field Manuals, and techniques into Army Techniques Publications. The initiative also standardizes the format for all publications, ensures they are easier to read, more relevant and current, and more accessible. Doctrine 2015 mandates that all FMs are published by December 2013 and all ATPs are published by December 2015.

FM 6-02 (Signal Support to Operations) is the premier Signal doctrine recently endorsed by the Chief of Signal in September 2013 and currently awaiting final approval for publication by the Commanding General of the Combined Arms Center. Nine supporting ATPs are in various stages of Initial Draft development, all planned for Army-wide staffing by Spring 2014. All Signal doctrine products are planned for publication by Summer 2015.
